

Pam Harris, MSW

Pamela was a social worker with Denver Health for the past 34 years. During that time, she helped physicians with inpatient behavioral health, medical and surgical specialty clinics.

Several years ago, she was asked to become a part of the interdisciplinary team that was being formed in the surgical breast clinic. She had the opportunity to work alongside the patient navigator to address psychosocial needs. It was during that time that a strong bond was formed with this population and knew she wanted to provide support through their painful journey.

She has served for the past 8 years on the review community for Ray of Hope. She is honored to be partnering with them to extend access to additional resources. Pamela is well acquainted with the unique experience, heartache, and challenges that health issues can present. She can relate on a personal level as she stepped in to care for her grandmother and subsequently her own mother until their passing.

In the mist of Pamela's dedication to helping those in need her favorite joy and past times include attending church, going on mission trips in the US and abroad, cooking and pottery.
